

Enterprise Claude Skills Catalog

Expanded Department Suites, Industry Overlay Suites, Subscription Packaging, Skill Credits, and Complete URL Appendix

Expanded v2. Research snapshot: May 25, 2026. Built for a project manager/work orchestration product that can license, activate, deactivate, meter, and route Claude Skills by department, industry, task type, risk tier, and token/credit value.

This edition substantially expands the department catalog. Marketing is split into strategy, brand, graphic design, video design, content, SEO/AEO, paid media, lifecycle, social, events, PR, and marketing operations. Most departments include 48 productizable skill SKUs; Marketing includes 72. The industry section adds 20 vertical overlay suites with 24 skills each.

1. Executive summary

The commercial model should treat skills as licensed capability modules, not as one-off prompts. A buyer can activate a department suite, add an industry overlay, then pay by subscription, skill credits, or a hybrid model. The project manager becomes the control plane that routes tasks to agents, agents to skills, and skill runs to approvals, logs, and billing.

Package	What it unlocks	Suggested monetization
Department Suite	A role-based operating system for a team such as Marketing, HR, IT, Finance, Customer Success, Sales, Legal, or Operations.	Monthly suite license plus included skill credits.
Industry Overlay	Industry-specific templates, terminology, compliance checks, workflows, and service playbooks layered on top of departments.	Add-on overlay license or premium vertical plan.
Skill Credit	A billable run unit based on complexity, tools, risk, and review needs.	1 credit for simple drafts; 3-5 for structured plans; 8-15 for research/analysis; 25+ for regulated/high-risk workflows.
Agent Seat	A named or pooled AI agent profile with permissions and available skills.	Charge by number of active agents, departments, or autonomous runs.
Regulated Controls	Human approvals, audit logs, skill scanning, data boundaries, and compliance evidence.	Enterprise/security add-on.

2. Research basis

Anthropic describes Agent Skills as reusable folders of instructions, scripts, and resources that Claude loads when relevant. Public source catalogs and GitHub repositories show a fast-growing ecosystem across engineering, marketing, product management, security, data, professional functions, and document creation. Asana public pages show strong department and industry demand for templated workflows across marketing, design, HR, IT, sales, customer success, product, construction, retail, manufacturing, healthcare, government, education, nonprofit, media, and finance. Industry targeting uses public US industry-size signals from BEA, BLS, and IBISWorld plus public Asana industry/team pages.

3. Packaging, subscriptions, and skill-credit model

Recommended packaging: sell a base Project Manager AI Control Plane, then activate department suites and industry overlay suites as licensable modules. A suite controls which agents and skills can run, what tools they can use, how many credits are included, and what approval gates apply.

Suggested subscription tiers

Tier	Target buyer	Included suites	Credit logic	Controls
Starter	Small teams and agencies	1 department suite; 1 basic industry overlay	500 light credits/month	Draft-only or comment-only skills
Growth	Growing companies	3 department suites; 2 industry overlays	2,500 mixed credits/month	Task creation, comments, status updates
Business	Mid-market	8 department suites; 5 overlays	10,000 credits/month	Approval gates, dashboards, integrations
Enterprise	Large cross-functional orgs	All department suites; selected overlays	Custom pool plus overages	SSO, audit logs, sandboxed scripts, data controls
Regulated	Healthcare, finance, government, pharma	All suites plus GRC, security, legal, QA/regulatory	Higher credit price for high-risk runs	Human approvals, evidence packs, policy controls
Agency/Implementation Partner	Consultants building client workflows	Multi-client suite packaging	Client-isolated credit pools	Template publishing and white labeling

Skill-credit values

- 1 credit - simple text drafting, classification, metadata cleanup, basic summaries, task comments.
- 3 credits - structured task plans, checklists, SOP drafts, simple workflow builders, meeting packs.
- 5 credits - multi-source analysis, department workflows, dashboards, campaign briefs, sales/CS plans.
- 8 credits - research synthesis, financial analysis, detailed PRDs, launch plans, security reviews, complex retrospectives.
- 15 credits - multi-agent workflows involving files, integrations, QA, external data, or regulated review.
- 25+ credits - high-risk workflows requiring human approval, audit evidence, code execution, production changes, or compliance signoff.

Activation controls

- Suites should be switchable by workspace, customer, department, project, user role, and data classification.
- Each skill should have a status: draft, reviewed, enabled, disabled, deprecated, quarantined.
- Each skill run should log task ID, user ID, agent ID, skill ID, source files, tool calls, approvals, output hash, credits charged, and risk tier.
- High-risk skills should require approval before they write to production systems, send external communications, touch billing/auth/data deletion, or run untrusted scripts.
- Third-party skills should be pinned to a commit, scanned, sandboxed, and reviewed before activation.

4. Department suites

This section expands the department catalog. Each department includes licensable modules and individual skill SKUs. Most departments include 8 modules x 6 skills = 48 skills. Marketing includes 12 modules x 6 skills = 72 skills because it includes graphic design, video design, performance marketing, SEO/AEO, events, PR, and marketing operations.

5. Industry overlay suites

Industry overlays should not replace department suites. They add domain terminology, regulatory context, templates, workflows, and buyer-specific value propositions on top of departments. A real estate customer, for example, may activate Marketing, Finance, Facilities, Procurement, Customer Service, and Legal - then add the Commercial Real Estate overlay.

Selection logic: prioritize large US industries, industries with complex recurring workflows, industries with public Asana template/customer evidence, and industries with multiple departments that can buy add-on modules.

Industry overlay	Why it is a strong target	Evidence/source refs
Commercial Real Estate and Property Management	Commercial real estate is one of the largest US industries by revenue; property management and construction-adjacent workflows are very Asana-friendly because they involve work orders, tenants, vendors, capital projects, marketing, and compliance.	D03, A25, A32
Healthcare and Life Sciences	Asana positions healthcare and life sciences around connecting providers, payers, care teams, researchers, security, compliance, and time-sensitive decisions.	A27, S16, D02
Financial Services, Banking, and Insurance	Finance and insurance are large, regulated, cross-functional industries with recurring work around compliance, product launches, customer ops, reporting, risk, and vendor management.	A11, D01, D03
Technology, SaaS, and Software	Technology firms are natural project-management users: product, engineering, IT, security, growth, support, and customer success all require repeatable workflows.	A08, A09, S13, S17
Manufacturing and Industrial	Manufacturing templates emphasize schedules, shipments, staffing, invoices, and details; the industry also needs quality, supply chain, maintenance, and regulatory workflows.	A26, D01, D02
Construction, Architecture, and Engineering	Asana construction templates explicitly include planning builds, property management, and construction work coordination.	A25, D01, D03
Retail and E-commerce	Asana retail page highlights campaigns across in-store, online, and mobile channels, seasonality, feedback, product launches, inventory, and new shop openings.	A24, D02, D03
Education, K-12, and Higher Education	Asana education templates focus on student events, curriculum roadmaps, weekly schedules, and behind-the-scenes educational logistics.	A29, D02, D04
Media, Entertainment, and Agencies	Asana media and Discovery creative production sources show strong fit for asset-heavy, deadline-driven creative workflows including video, social, web, and approvals.	A31, A14, S12, S28
Professional Services and Consulting	Consultancies, agencies, legal/accounting firms, and advisory businesses need repeatable client delivery, knowledge management, staffing, proposals, and executive reporting.	A21, A22, A23, A32
Government and Public Sector	Asana government page emphasizes secure, compliant work, strategic goals, cross-agency collaboration, and FedRAMP-oriented environments.	A28, D02, S30, S31
Nonprofit, Foundations, and Associations	Asana nonprofit templates emphasize business planning, PR strategy, event marketing, cross-functional projects, HR tasks, and mission-focused efficiency.	A30, A32, A21
Energy, Utilities, and Infrastructure	Energy and utilities manage complex capital projects, field operations, compliance, safety, outages, customers, and asset maintenance.	D01, D02, A21, A28

6. Implementation architecture for activation/deactivation

Use a registry-driven architecture so every suite can be licensed, metered, audited, and disabled without code redeploys. A department suite activates a set of agents, skills, templates, tasks, prompts, approval gates, and reporting dashboards. An industry overlay adds fields, vocabulary, risk rules, workflow templates, and bundled service tasks.

Recommended database objects

- skill_sources - repository/source URL, license, trust level, pinned commit, security scan status.
- skills - slug, name, description, department, industry tags, risk tier, allowed tools, required approvals, credit cost.
- skill_packages - groups of skills sold as suites, add-ons, or overlays.
- department_suites - department modules, agents, templates, forms, dashboards, permissions, billing plan.
- industry_overlays - industry workflows, terminology, templates, data fields, compliance rules, default department bundles.
- license_entitlements - customer, workspace, suite, max agents, credit pool, expiration, feature flags.
- agent_profiles - role, memory scope, tools, autonomy level, default skills, review agents.
- skill_runs - task ID, agent ID, skill ID, input/output hash, tool calls, credits charged, approvals, audit events.
- approval_gates - risk condition, approval owner, SLA, escalation, before/after actions.
- audit_logs - immutable event stream for every agent/skill/customer action.

Skill risk tiers

- Tier 0 read-only: classification, summaries, task suggestions, drafts.
- Tier 1 workspace write: comments, labels, subtasks, non-critical status changes.
- Tier 2 external draft: emails, PR, customer, legal, or financial content drafted but not sent.
- Tier 3 integration write: updates CRM, ticketing, docs, or project records with reversible changes.
- Tier 4 controlled execution: code, scripts, data transforms, spreadsheet models, or API writes in a sandbox.
- Tier 5 regulated/high risk: production, billing, auth, legal commitments, compliance evidence, PHI/PII, financial approvals, security exceptions, data deletion.

Security and review gates

- Pin every third-party skill source to a commit and store a hash of the skill folder.
- Run static checks for shell commands, network downloads, secrets, prompt injection, data exfiltration language, and untrusted dependencies.
- Use Snyk-style agent-skill scanning or a comparable internal scanner before enabling community skills.
- Keep third-party scripts disabled until reviewed; allow pure-instruction skills first.
- Separate customer workspaces, memories, files, credentials, and tool scopes.
- Require human approval for regulated, financial, legal, production, customer-facing, security-sensitive, or destructive actions.
- Log every skill activation, run, output, approval, edit, and deactivation event for auditability.

7. Cross-sell matrix: departments by industry

Use this as the go-to-market map. Sell the industry overlay first when the buyer thinks vertically; sell the department suite first when the buyer owns a function. Then cross-sell adjacent departments.

Industry	Primary wedge	Second suite	Third suite	Premium add-on
Commercial Real Estate and Property Management	Facilities/Property Ops	Marketing	Finance	Legal + Procurement
Healthcare and Life Sciences	Quality/Regulatory	Security/GRC	Operations	Data + Research

8.4 Suggested internal URL format for every productized skill

When you package these skill SKUs into your own product, give every skill a permanent internal URL so buyers can understand, license, activate, deactivate, and audit it. Example:

<https://yourdomain.com/skills/departments/marketing/graphic-design/design-brief-generator>
<https://yourdomain.com/skills/departments/marketing/video-design/storyboard-generator>

<https://yourdomain.com/skills/industries/real-estate/maintenance/work-order-triage>
<https://yourdomain.com/skills/industries/healthcare/compliance/hipaa-workflow-check>

9. Final recommendation

Launch with a catalog that feels broad but is operationally controlled: start with Marketing, Sales, Customer Success, HR, IT, Finance, Product, Engineering, Operations, Legal, Security/GRC, and Data. Add the 20 industry overlays as sales packages. Use skill credits to meter usage, but keep suite subscriptions simple. Every skill should be reviewable, disableable, auditable, and tied to a clear business workflow.

Do not enable arbitrary third-party skills automatically. Import them as source material, pin the source, scan them, rewrite them into your own reviewed skill format, and activate them only through the license/permission system.

Complete Per-Skill Source URL Index

This appendix is added to the expanded catalog so every individual productized skill SKU has a copy/pasteable internal skill URL pattern and complete public source/reference URLs. Public source URLs are exact repositories, source families, or workflow references used to seed the commercial skill. For production, rewrite these as your own reviewed skill folders, pin external sources to commits, and expose your own permanent skill URLs.

Format: INTERNAL_SKILL_URL | Public source/reference URLs. The internal URL uses yourdomain.com as a placeholder for your product registry.
